RICHARD FRYKLUND,

The Star's Military Affairs Writer, is a man on the move. All told he traveled 50,000 miles and visited 24 countries over the past 12 months. Here, he attends a briefing of Nationalist Chinese on the Island of Quemoy—a stop-over on his recent tour of Viet Nam, Formosa, Okinawa, South Korea, Japan, Thailand and the Philippines.

Fryklund's professional competence was accented by a statement made by the Secretary of the Air Force, Eugene M. Zuckert:

"... creative authors, like Richard Fryklund of The Washington Star, have made definite contributions to our concept of strategic warfare."
